The Lighthouse of Alexandria

Introduction

Many hundreds of years ago, Greek writers made lists of the seven most impressive monuments of ancient world. The first six places were the same on most of these lists, but the writers could not agree on the seventh.

If you looked at the final list today you might wonder why the Greek writers had included some monuments, but excluded other. You may wonder why the Great Wall of China was not on the list. There were two main reasons for some monuments being left off the final list. Firstly, as it were the Greeks who were writing the lists, so they favoured their own buildings. Secondly, the Greeks may not have even known about other monuments in other parts of the world.

Today, we have learned much of what we know about these monument from historians. The seven wonders of the ancient world, that made the final list, are the Great Pyramid of Giza, the Hanging Garden of Babylon, the Statue of Zeus at Olympia, the Temple of Artemis at Ephesus, the Mausoleum at Halicarnassus, the Colossus of Rhodes and the Lighthouse of Alexandria. Let's take a closer look at the Lighthouse of Alexandria.

The Lighthouse of Alexandria

The Lighthouse of Alexandria was the only one of the seven ancient wonders that had a practical use. It helped sailors find their way safely into the harbour.

It was the tallest building on earth at the time , and had a mirror to reflect light from the sun.

Location

The lighthouse was built on the island of Pharos, which is now in the city of Alexandria in Egypt. The Lighthouse of Alexandria was built of white marble. It looked more like a skyscraper of modern times than the lighthouse we now know. The total height of the lighthouse was about 177 metres. The light from the mirror could be seen for kilometers during the day. At night, a fire provided the light.

History

When Alexander the Great died, his commander Ptolemy, took control in Egypt and established his capital in Alexandria.

Pharos is a small island just off the shores of Alexandria. In ancient times, it was connected with the mainland by a causeway which gave the city two harbours. Because the mainland around it was very flat, sailors could not see where the harbours were. To help them return home safely, Ptolemy decided to build a lighthouse. Besides being used to guide sailors safely, the lighthouse was also a tourist attraction. Visitors could go to an observation platform and look at the surrounding countryside. They could also buy food. The lighthouse stood until it was damaged by earthquakes.

How the Lighthouse of Alexandria was Built

Historians think that the lighthouse was probably built in the three parts, each on top of the other. The first part to be built was shaped like a square box that was 55.9 metres high. There was a circular ramp inside this square building.

The ramp was wide enough to allow horses and carts to pull up material to fuel the fire above. An eight-sided tower was built on the top of the square. On top of this was a round building that housed the mirror.

All Seven Ancient Wonders were huge and amazing buildings that were often ornately decorated. When we look at what we know about them today and realize the designers and builders did not have all of the technology and building equipment that we have, they seem even more wondrous.
